

Investigating the Relationship between Public Funding and Crime

Timothy Shortell

What is the relationship between public funding and crime?

States that spend more on education have much lower crime rates.

States that spend more on policing have only slightly lower crime rates.

What is the relationship between public funding and crime?

States that spend more on education have much lower crime rates.

States that spend more on policing have only slightly lower crime rates.

